

Homeless man played piano in church; 2 years later, he raised £50,000 for charity

Source: TOI_Top_Stories

In January 2024, homeless man Rhys Wynne-Jones went to a church in England for shelter and asked to play its piano. His performance of Queen's "Bohemian Rhapsody" went viral. Two years later, he has found a home, performed at charity events, worked with Peter Andre and raised more than £40,000 for homeless charities and other good causes.